Inquests & Inquiries

Esther frequently represents families at inquests involving deaths at work, in hospital or following medical treatment.

Recent cases have included:

- Re: JC [2018] Representing the family of a woman who died of bronchopneumonia. The coroner acceded to Esther's submission that a narrative verdict was appropriate and went on to find that opiate medication not intended for the deceased was administered to the deceased in hospital and that this had contributed to her demise. Esther subsequently advised on the civil claim brought by the estate and dependants of the deceased.
- Re: GM [2018] Representing the family of a man who developed sepsis and died following haemorrhoid banding surgery.
- Re: CM [2018] representing the family of an 80 year old lady who died following surgery to treat a bowel obstruction.
- Re: MB [2018] Representing the family of an elderly lady with dementia who died following surgery to treat a hip fracture that had been undiagnosed by her treating doctors for several months.
