Issues arising included entitlement to success fee and the retrospectivity of the underlying CFA. Before the costs judge in 2021 and at the High Court appeal in 2023, Gurion successfully argued that the CFA was expressly retrospective. Gurion was retained as junior counsel in the paying party's further appeal to the Court of Appeal in 2025. The appeal was successfully resisted with the Court upholding the decisions below. The CA decision is also significant in stating, obiter and for the first time at CA level that retrospectively in a CFA may in principle arise by implication too.

The defendant's bill of costs was subsequently assessed at £150K.
