Laura Johnson KC has been ranked for many years in the legal directories in the fields of personal injury, clinical negligence and police claims.

She was shortlisted for Personal Injury Junior of the Year at the Chambers UK Bar Awards 2021. She is a former assistant coroner who specialises in inquests and has substantial experience of public inquiry work.

Laura's practice is focused on claims that are high value, complex or sensitive, acting for both claimants and defendants. She is an experienced advocate, equally comfortable advancing appellate arguments on points of law as she is addressing a civil jury. Many of Laura's cases are resolved through ADR and she frequently represents parties in JSMs and mediations.

Laura enjoys working as part of a team. Her client care skills are often commended in the legal directories. Whether acting for injured or bereaved individuals, or representing institutions facing public scrutiny in controversial cases, she is focussed on understanding the needs of the client and providing thoughtful advice setting a clear strategy. Many of her cases involve multiple experts and she is used to dealing with and advising on complex medical and quantum evidence.

Areas of Expertise

Personal Injury

Laura has long been recognised as a leader in the field of personal injury and she was shortlisted for Personal Injury Junior of the Year at the Chambers UK Bar Awards 2021. She is co-head of the Deka Chambers Personal Injury Group.

Laura's current claimant work encompasses serious brain and spinal injury, amputation, functional neurological disorders, complex psychiatric and fatal claims. She is instructed in a range of claims of substantial value involving serious injury to children, including traumatic brain injury necessitating full time care for life with associated accommodation and MDT cost claims. She has considerable experience of managing cases involving large numbers of medical experts and complex medical issues. Laura's expertise in clinical negligence work means that she is well placed to advise on such issues.

Laura is a popular and experienced trial advocate, regularly acting for defendants in a range of work, often involving significant legal complexity and reputational sensitivity. She is very experienced in cases concerning the existence and scope of the duty of care, vicarious liability and those that intersect with discrimination and human rights law (for work involving public bodies, human rights and discrimination see Laura's profile for Public Sector and Human Rights work).

Laura is recognised for her expertise in cases of occupational stress, bullying and harassment with recent instructions for leading universities, a high profile investment bank, FTSE 250 companies, police forces, the BBC, local authorities, the NHS and educational institutions.

She has expertise in education claims, instructed by schools and leading universities in cases involving quality of education, care and welfare of children with special educational needs, religious, disability and gender discrimination, physical and sexual abuse and novel questions of the duty of care owed by universities to students in respect of their mental health. Laura is regularly instructed by high profile fee paying schools to advise on claims concerning safeguarding, recent and historic sex abuse allegations and peer on peer bullying.

Laura acts for public bodies, religious organisations and charities in a range of work and has expertise in claims arising out of allegations of neglect and physical and sexual abuse of children and vulnerable adults. She is also instructed in civil cases involving allegations of fraud.

Notable Personal Injury cases

JD v East Berkshire Community Health [2005] 2 AC 373

Clinical Negligence & Healthcare

Laura has long been recognised as a leader in the field of clinical negligence. She acts for claimants and defendants and is very experienced in cases involving catastrophic injury, including brain and spinal injury. She is a popular and confident trial advocate, regularly instructed in substantial seven figure claims. She has a particular interest in novel legal issues and has appeared recently in the Court of Appeal and High Court in leading cases involving questions of consent and the duty of care owed to secondary victims.

Laura's work encompasses all areas of clinical practice. She has particular expertise in claims involving obstetrics and gynaecology (including birth injury / cerebral palsy of the utmost severity) and spinal injury claims including neuro and spinal surgery and cauda equina. Recent instructions span emergency care, oncology, ophthalmics, general surgery, colorectal surgery, cardiology and cardiac surgery, mental health and cosmetic surgery. She has experience of claims involving prison healthcare and with a cross border element.

Notable Clinical Negligence & Healthcare cases

LXD v East Suffolk & North Essex NHS Foundation Trust [2024]

Approved settlement of a clinical negligence case brought by a child who suffered skull fractures during delivery by caesarean section necessitating life long 2:1 care. The claim had a full value of £30m but settled for a capitalised sum of £17m (lump sum + PPO) following a 55% liability compromise. With Ed Bishop KC.

Paul v Wolverhampton NHS Trust [2024] 2 WLR 417

Re Charles Stringer 2022

Laura represented the family of Mr Stringer who died when his bicycle collided with a pothole that had been reported on a number of occasions by members of the public prior to his death.

Police Law

Laura has long been recognised as a leading junior in the field of actions against the police, acting exclusively for police forces.

Laura's work encompasses misfeasance in public office, malicious prosecution, Human Rights Act claims for failing to conduct an adequate investigation, allegations of excessive force resulting in serious personal injury, wrongful arrest, vicarious liability claims for police officers accused of serious sexual misconduct, employers' liability, occupational stress / harassment and claims concerning novel duties of care.

Recent work includes:

- defending a police force accused of malicious prosecution and misfeasance in public office in an investigation into an allegation of coercive control
- defending a police force accused of vicarious liability for an officer said to have harassed and bullied another, allegedly procuring the criminal conviction of the claimant's son
- defending a claim for occupational stress and bullying brought by a former undercover officer
- defending a claim for excessive use of force and wrongful detention in circumstances that were said to be racially motivated
- advising on multiple claims of sexual abuse by an officer of children in respect of which a police force was said to be vicariously liable

Public Sector & Human Rights

Throughout her career Laura has acted for public authorities in a broad range of work. She has expertise in cases brought in negligence, under the Equality Act 2010 and the Human Rights Act 1998.

Laura has a good understanding of the pressures faced by public bodies, particularly when managing claims that attract publicity and public controversy. She is equally adept at defending these claims to trial as she is identifying a strategy to resolve them using ADR.

Laura recognises that the interests of public bodies in difficult and complex cases often go beyond financial and that representing their interests frequently involves a sensitivity of style, not only in relation to supporting her own witnesses, but also when presenting the defence of a case that has tragic or traumatic underlying facts.

Laura prides herself on a collaborative style, building strong relationships within the litigation team and treating witnesses with empathy.

Laura has experience in inquests (a former assistant coroner) and inquiries (having spent 18 months representing the interests of Greater Manchester Fire & Rescue Service in the Manchester Arena Inquiry).
