Tom Little KC is First Senior Treasury Counsel and regularly prosecutes some of the country's most high-profile cases.

This includes the murder of Jo Cox MP, the kidnap, rape and murder of Sarah Everard and the murder of Sir David Amess MP. He has also prosecuted a number of well known individuals for historic sexual offending. They include Max Clifford and Lord Ahmed of Rotherham. In 2021 Tom won Crime Silk of the Year at the Chambers UK Bar Awards.

Tom frequently appears in the Court of Appeal and Supreme Court in cases of general public importance (such as R v Hunter & others, R v Golds, R (Belhaj) v DPP and FCO, R v Umerji and R v Plaku). Tom has also undertaken a significant amount of work for the Serious Fraud Office and is equally adept prosecuting or defending in such cases.

In addition to his heavy criminal and fraud practice Tom undertakes a wide range of civil work. In particular judicial review proceedings both for Defendants and also Claimants as well as Inquests and Inquiries. He was Counsel to the Inquest into the death of Yassar Yaqub in 2022. He also provides strategic advice to liquidators and creditors on the interplay between civil and criminal proceedings where there is suspected fraud as well as regulatory cases in various tribunals.

Areas of Expertise

Crime

Tom has conducted more than eighty homicide trials as well as the full range of other serious criminal cases most notably terrorism and sexual offences. He regularly appears in high-profile cases both at Old Bailey and also in the Court of Appeal. He has particular expertise in cases involving expert evidence and also in the handling and use of highly sensitive material (where he combines his experience as both Treasury Counsel and the Special Advocate). However, it is as an appellate advocate that he is particularly well-renowned. He is frequently instructed on appeal in cases that he was not involved at first instance either in appeals where unrelated cases are listed together to address matters of general public importance or as an amicus appointed by the Attorney General to assist the Court on difficult legal issues.

Notable Crime cases

R v Choudry and Hussein [2024]

Tom successfully prosecuted Anjem Choudary and Khalid Hussein in this high profile terrorism prosecution. Anjem Choudary was only the second person to be successfully prosecuted for an offence of directing a terrorist organisation. A life sentence with a minimum term of 28 years was imposed upon him for his offending.

R v NG and O'Reilly [2024] EWCA Crim 493; [2024] 1 WLR 3225

Tom appeared just on appeal successfully overturning a decision of the Resident Judge in Canterbury to stay a case as an abuse of process following the non-attendance of prosecution counsel. The case provides clear guidance as to the correct approach to be taken in these cases.

Attorney General's Reference on a point of law (No 1 of 2023) [2024] EWCA Crim 243; [2024] 1 WLR 3205

Tom appeared for the Attorney General in this reference on a point law relating to the offence of criminal damage arising in the course of a protest. The Court accepted Tom's submissions.

R v Jacques (2023)

Successfully prosecuted quadruple murder trial in which the defendant killed three generations of one family. Case turned on competing psychiatric evidence as to diminished responsibility.

R v Poonia and others (2023)

Successfully prosecuted murder trial in which victim was murdered in drug debt dispute and his body was then hidden and transferred to the countryside, burnt and buried in a shallow grave.

R v Carrick (2023)

Successfully prosecuted Metropolitan Police Officer who was a serial rapist offending against 13 women over nearly two decades. All offences committed when he was a Police officer.

R v McGrory (2022)

Successfully prosecuted murder and rape offences committed in 1975. The defendant had been acquitted of murder in 1976 but following advances in DNA there was new and compelling scientific evidence which led to the Court of Appeal in 2021 quashing the acquittal and ordering a retrial in which that evidence was the main evidence against the defendant. Tom appeared both in the Court of Appeal and at trial.

Attorney General's Reference on a point of law (No 1 of 2022)

Successfully appeared on behalf of the Attorney General seeking clarification as to whether an ECHR proportionality analysis was required before a defendant could be convicted for an offence of criminal damage arising in the course of a protest. The reference related to the trial of the defendants for the toppling of the Colston statue in Bristol.

R v Ali Harbi Ali (2022)

Successfully prosecuted case relating to the murder of Sir David Amess MP who was stabbed to death in a church whilst meeting constituents.

R v Nazir Ahmed and two others (2021)

Successfully prosecuted Lord Ahmed of Rotherham and his two brothers for historic sexual offending.

R v Couzens (2021)

Prosecuted serving Met Police officer Wayne Couzens for the kidnap, rape and murder of Sarah Everard.

R v Umerji (2021) [2021] EWCA Crim 598

Tom successfully represented the Prosecution in the Court of Appeal in case involving complex arguments of statutory construction as to whether a defendant must be present at their section 51 hearing in the Magistrates' Court when sent to the Crown Court for an indictable only offence.

R v Vyas (2020)

Successfully prosecuted serial stranger rapist whose attacks involved increasing violence culminating in the murder of the last victim.

R v Bater-James and Mohammed (2020) [2020] 2 Cr. App. R. 20

Successfully appeared just in the Court of Appeal to represent the prosecution in two conjoined appeals so that guidance could be given on the correct approach to the obtaining of, searching and disclosure of the content of mobile telephones of complainants.

R v Weir (2019) [2019] EWCA Crim 638

Successfully prosecuted double murder trial that made legal history. The defendant had previously had his conviction for murder quashed by the Court of Appeal in 2000. Tom represented the DPP in the application to quash the acquittal under the double jeopardy provisions in light of new DNA evidence and then he prosecuted both that and another murder at trial.

Public Sector & Human Rights

Tom's judicial review practice is primarily (but not exclusively) based on claims with a link or association to the criminal justice system – notably challenges to prosecutorial decisions and challenges to investigative decisions. He regularly advises the DPP on high-profile challenges to his decisions and policies as well as also advising the Attorney General on public law issues arising from her functions including her superintendence functions.

Notable Public Sector & Human Rights cases

R (DPP) v The Crown Court at Lewes [2024] EWHC 1885 Admin

Tom successfully appeared in this judicial review on behalf of the DPP in relation to the appropriate calculation for the custody time limit when a case is remitted from the Crown Court back to the Magistrates Court for trial and in particular whether time spent in the custody of the Crown Court should count.

DPP v Joey Barton [2024] EWHC 1350 Admin

Tom successfully appeared on behalf of the DPP in this case stated appeal relating to the correct approach to take in relation to calling or not calling the alleged victim of domestic abuse who is unwilling from a very early stage to provide a witness statement and support a prosecution. The case has been remitted to the Magistrates Court for a new trial.

DPP v Eastburn 2023 EWHC 1063 Admin

Tom successfully appeared on behalf of the DPP in this case stated appeal relating to whether it was necessary for there to be any form of proportionality analysis conducted in relation to a prosecution for an offence contrary to section 14 of the Public Order Act 1986.

R (Director of Public Prosecutions) v Bristol Crown Court and others (2022)

Successfully applied to the Divisional Court to rule that the decisions of Crown Court judges to refuse to extend custody time limits because of industrial action by the Criminal Bar Association was unlawful.

DPP v Cuciurean (2022)

Tom successfully appeared for the DPP in this important case involving consideration of the Supreme Court decision of Ziegler v DPP and its application to other offences committed in the course of protesting.

R (Jabber) v The Crown Court sitting at Sheffield (2022)

Tom successfully resisted this claim for judicial review which turned on a question of statutory construction relating to the expiry of a custody time limit.

R (EVAW) v DPP (2019 - 2021) [2021] 2 Cr. App. R. 2

Successfully represented the DPP in landmark and high profile public law challenge in both the Divisional Court and Court of Appeal as to whether the CPS had changed its policy as to whether there is sufficient evidence to prosecute rape cases.

McCourt v Parole Board (2020) [2020] A.C.D. 127

Represented the Claimant in two day judicial review challenging the Parole Board's decision to release Ian Simms. He was convicted of murdering Claimant's daughter – Helen McCourt in 1989 but still refuses to say where her body is. Tom's submission as to the standing to bring the proceedings were accepted by the Court and represent important clarity on that issue for the families of other victims.

R (McKenzie) v Lord Chancellor, DPP and the Lord Chief Justice (2020)[2020] 4 W.L.R. 106

Successfully represented the DPP in a challenge to the legality of the suspension of jury trials following the COVID 19 pandemic.

El Gizouli v SSHD and DPP (2019 - 2020) [2020] EWHC 2516 (Admin)

Successfully represented DPP in two judicial review challenges to the decision making of the DPP and the provision of documentation to the USA relating to the notorious ISIS Beatles.

R (Slade and Baxter) v The Attorney General and DPP (2018) [2019] A.C.D. 24

Successfully appeared for the Attorney General in important public law case relating to the extent of the superintendence function of the Attorney General over the DPP.

R (Belhaj) v The DPP & Secretary of State for Foreign & Commonwealth Affairs (2017-2018) [2018] UKSC 33; [2018] 3 WLR 435

Appeared for the DPP in preliminary issue hearing in both the Divisional Court and the Supreme Court relating to the availability of Closed Material Proceedings in a judicial review claim relating to a decision not to prosecute.

Fraud

Both as a junior but also in Silk Tom has advised on and appeared in a number of high-profile and complex fraud cases not just for the SFO but also for the OPS. He is also often brought in to advise on discrete legal issues arising in these cases both for the Prosecution and the Defence as well as appearing just in appellate proceedings in these cases.

Notable Fraud cases

Re ED

(2020) Advising on underlying criminality relating to overseas restraint order involving alleged criminality also occurring outside the jurisdiction and whether the conduct alleged amounts to any criminal offence in this jurisdiction.
